CARMAN	#9635	28:30	22:00	REC	PA/O	05-03-97	7:00P

Carman discusses AIDS on the program with special guest Dr. Wendall Hoffman, author of AIDS, Ministry in The Midst of an Epidemic. As we near the 21st Century the number of AIDS causalities is projected to be at 110 million. In light of this, Dr. Hoffman warns about the dangerous myth of safe sex. Short of a long term monogamous relationship, there is only safer sex practices. AIDS is spreading rapidly, especially through our Nation's youth population, who are increasingly sexually active. Sixty percent of all high school girls, and 70 percent of high school boys are sexually active. Forty percent of those active have had sex with an average of five partners. Dr. Hoffman talks about the connection between the act and the consequence, and explains that moralization cannot be privatized, saying that what happens between two people affects society as a whole. Everybody has a personal responsibility. Dr. Hoffman cites remaining celibate until marriage as a way for society to control and end the AIDS epidemic.

On this program Carman discusses "one truth or consequences" as he explores the myths of premarital sex and the use of condoms. Sterility, pregnancy, disease, emotional scars and death are the consequences people open themselves up to when they engage in sexual activity. Often a teen is seeking to fulfill an emotional or spiritual emptiness, and instead, the teen ends up feeling used and empty, or worse, infected with a sexually transmitted disease such as HIV/AIDS. Outside of marriage, sex cannot be equated with commitment and security; within marriage individuals find protection from disease and a sense of commitment. Carman gives a call for self control and says that sex was designed by God to be experienced within the bonds of marriage.

The message of this program is Be A Kid Against Drugs . Drugs can destroy the mind and the body. Drugs can stop you from realizing your dreams. Drugs can put you in prison. Rosey tells the kids they do not have to do drugs. It is their decision. They can make up their own mind. Rosey challenges the kids with all the good things they can do with their lives and tells them to be a kid against drugs .
#16		28:00	22:00	L	PA/O	02-22-97	5:00A 10:30A
Rosey Grier talks with kids about the danger of guns. He tells them they do not need guns. They have the police working on their behalf. They don't have to be angry, they don't have to be mad. If someone hurts them, they don't need to try to get even. They can learn to forgive that person. Rosey tells them to make a difference in our society and that means not getting involved in violence. If they come across a gun, don't use it because it can destroy their future. He tells them to think about their future, think about their family. Be a kid against guns .

	Host Rosey Grier talks about the power and influence of a group to do good or bad with an ex-gang member named Lawrence. Lawrence shares how he turned from his violent and destructive lifestyle after leaving the gang he belonged to. The moment of truth came after watching his best friend bleed to death on the street after he was shot trying to flee a botched shop lifting attempt. He realized that he was no more than a follower of a group that lived for the moment with little regard for others or even themselves. He decided to become responsible for his own destiny, to make positive choices that would pave a way for a future with promise and possibility. He became his own leader, rather than a follower of a destructive group whose members could be there one day and then gone the next. He says that the people that have now become his friends are people with similar positive goals. Where as the negative influence of the gang brought about violence and death in his life, his new group of friends help each other and encourage each other to bring about positive experience in their lives and others.

	The lesson today is about wasting time and being on time. People who are always late have no consideration for other people's time. We need to make the best of our time and talent and be considerate of others, also.

JUST THE FACTS	#32	28:30	22:00	REC	PA/O	01-04-97	7:00A
	Rod Hembree discusses communication with God, the existence of right and wrong and the possibility of life on Mars. He makes the point that speaking to God is more of a lifestyle than a simple event. It transcends language and involves the heart and soul. Although the idea of absolutes is considered obsolete in our modern age of relativism, right and wrong do exist and have consequences that give evidence to their diametrically opposed influences. He challenges young people to be careful of what they put in their minds and not to accept popular opinion as truth when it comes to right and wrong. As for life on Mars, Rod explores the interesting fact that the Earth is constantly shedding microbiotic life. If indeed, microbiotic life has been found on Mars, astronomical odds prevail that it would have had to originate from Earth.

	Host, Rod, Hembree, explores the Judeo-Christian ethos that are the foundations of the justice systems of the Free World. For survival, a society must clearly define the standards of right and wrong by which it is to live by. Then a judicial system to enforce those standards must be brought into existence. This system must be applied with equity to all members of the society, and be a respecter of all persons (poor and rich, male and female, etc.) or the society will eventually be destroyed from corruption within.

	Host, Rod Hembree, sheds light on the power of changing one's mind-set. Often a person looks to circumstances to determine who or what is an obstacle in his or her life. Rod says the secret to life is not to look outwardly to understand life and yourself, but rather to look within yourself for what you believe. Rod encourages young people to be active, not reactive, in how they see themselves within the world. It's not so much what and who is against or for you; it is what you are standing for that truly frees you to be the person you want to be.

	Rod addresses the topic of friends and their influence. Rod says that in the Bible a heroic man named Samson was brought down by the destructive influence of bad company. The infamous allure of Delilah seemed innocuous. How could something that looked so good be so bad? But Delilah only wanted to destroy Samson. Samson would find out the hard way that things were not always the way they appeared. The result of keeping bad company first of all, thwarted his purpose in life and in the end, cost him his life. Rod cautions viewers to be careful of the company they keep.

Rod Hembree talks about the short-comings of our culture's most popular forms of entertainment- television and movies. He says that when people are unhappy, often they turn to the artificial reality of the big and little screen as a way to forget their problems and feel better. The irony of tuning out the problems of everyday life and into the scripted world of TV and movies is that there is an overwhelming amount of negative content in these media. It's no secret that violence, horror and sex draw large box-office returns and bring the highest ratings. Just the Facts spoofs the notion that the outrageous amount of gratuitous sex and violence on TV and movies will help your mental state of being at all. Rod talks about the story of Hannah from the Bible and her struggle with feelings of inadequacy and failure. Hannah was teased continually because of her apparent inability to have children. Even her husband's great love for her and attempt to comfort her could not assail her feeling of shame. Hannah sought God, and then, after years of being barren, gave birth to a son. Hannah's son Samuel, went on to become one of the greatest historical figures in the nation of Israel. Rod says this story illustrates the value of a person's needs and desires. Circumstances and the accusations of others may together appear to say there is nothing special about a person like Hannah, but inside Hannah there was a dream. God's desire to bless the brokenhearted demonstrates how inside of each person there is potentiality for fruitfulness that is invaluable. Rod says that we must not accept a prognosis of failure that comes from difficult circumstances and negative people.

Rod Hembree talks about dealing with failure. Like King David in the Bible, we all fail. Often the response is to try to cover the offence. Rod says that when David tried to cover his affair with a married woman, David only committed increasingly grievous wrongs. Rod says everyone must make the choice to either hide or heal. Once David finally repented and turned from his failure, he began to heal. The sooner we admit our mistake and try to right the wrong, the less extent of the damage, and the sooner we will heal.

Host, Rod Hembree talks about the combination of knowledge and faith. He says that it is not enough to know something, you must have conviction when it comes to tough issues. You must have a strong belief or faith in what you know. Head knowledge only goes so far, heart knowledge is needed. Furthermore, intelligence does not necessarily mean wisdom. Knowledge and a belief system (faith in what you know) are the combined factors that help a person to arrive at the best answer to a problem.

Host, Rod Hembree talks about what or who controls our lives. He said that a big clue to what controls our lives can be found in what we seek in troubled times to comfort ourselves. Furthermore, what you choose to predominantly focus on, will control your life, whether it be money, education, intellect, friends, music or God. This focus is a form of worship when certain things become of supreme importance. In this respect, worship becomes an attitude because what we put in our minds will shape the atmosphere of our world. A negative focus (i.e. worshipping money and thus becoming greedy) begets negative thoughts and a negative attitude. The inverse is true for a positive focus (i.e. worshipping God and thus upholding the golden commandment to love thy neighbor as thy self). It is paramount to remember that we have the power to choose what we focus on, and thus what our attitude will be.

Host, Rod Hembree, talks about changing your atmosphere. When things in life go wrong, often people get angry. They nurture this anger and pursue ways of dealing with situations accordingly. Rod says instead of nurturing anger, it would be more effective to cultivate change. In other words, find positive and productive ways to deal with negative situations, rather than negative means of dealing with difficult problems. Work with the problem, not against it.

Rod Hembree talks about the limitations of what he terms pure intelligence . In other words, values and belief systems must be plugged into the equation of figuring out answers - facts alone are not enough. A spoof is given about two military men who use a super computer to find a new strategy to win a battle and achieve peace on Earth. The computer concludes that in order to ultimately win and achieve peace, mankind must be destroyed because through out man's history, all weapons and human logic has sooner or later been used to over-power and destroy other humans. Accordingly, no one will ever win and peace will never be achieved until the Earth is eradicated of human life. Rod concludes by saying this is not the only way to peace. We have answers that defy even past evidence. For example, love has the power to save and is even greater than hate with its power to destroy. We must strive beyond the natural logic. Intelligence alone can not generate the answers needed for the complicated problems on this planet.
